

Chapter 26 - Giraffe - The LGBTQ Standing Tall with Heart

The giraffe. Love. LGBTQ 18 John 4:18 “There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear: because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love.” Isaiah 12:2 “Behold, God is my salvation; I will trust, and not be afraid: for the Lord Jehovah is my strength and my song; he also is become my salvation.”

Symbolism and Nature of the Giraffe Giraffes are a symbol of aspiration and pride and are Africa’s gentle giants. God would not forgo heaven to the LGBTQ community. He asks for this picture to show their spectacular and gentle demeanor. The preceding Bible quotes are promising everyone a chance at eternal life, based on merit, which it's more how your story ends.

It does not matter who we chose to love, only that we love in an uplifting and caring way and that we don’t let our love lead to coveting or controlling the other person to limit their love to just you. Encourage others to love whom they want for the more people one loves the more fortunate they are.

The giraffe, with its long neck and gentle demeanor, stands as a proud symbol of love and the LGBTQ community. The giraffe's height allows it to see far, offering a perspective that rises above the noise of everyday life.

Its open heart is as expansive as its view, embodying love that is free from contempt, control, or coveting. The giraffe teaches us the beauty of loving openly and honestly, creating space for genuine connection and acceptance.

Chapter 26 - Giraffe - The LGBTQ Standing Tall with Heart

The giraffe. Love. LGBTQ 18 John 4:18 “There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear: because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love.” Isaiah 12:2 “Behold, God is my salvation; I will trust, and not be afraid: for the Lord Jehovah is my strength and my song; he also is become my salvation.”

Symbolism and Nature of the Giraffe Giraffes are a symbol of aspiration and pride and are Africa’s gentle giants. God would not forgo heaven to the LGBTQ community. He asks for this picture to show their spectacular and gentle demeanor. The preceding Bible quotes are promising everyone a chance at eternal life, based on merit, which it's more how your story ends.

chose to love, only that we love in an uplifting and caring way and that we don’t let our love lead to coveting or controlling the other person to limit their love to just you. Encourage others to love whom they want for the more people one loves the more fortunate they are.

The giraffe, with its long neck and gentle demeanor, stands as a proud symbol of love and the LGBTQ community. The giraffe's height allows it to see far, offering a perspective that rises above the noise of everyday life.

Its open heart is as expansive as its view, embodying love that is free from contempt, control, or coveting. The giraffe teaches us the beauty of loving openly and honestly, creating space for genuine connection and acceptance.

The giraffe, with its towering height and graceful stance, is a symbol of perspective, vision, and pride. Its long neck allows it to see far and wide, offering a unique vantage point that others cannot access. This elevated perspective symbolizes the ability to rise above challenges, to see beyond the immediate, and to maintain a broader view of life's journey.

The giraffe's quiet, gentle demeanor contrasts with its striking presence, showing that true strength often lies in subtlety and quiet confidence.

The giraffe's heart is one of the largest among land animals, a literal and metaphorical symbol of having a big heart. This aligns with the idea of living "With Heart Open," as the giraffe embodies the ability to hold compassion, understanding, and love while standing tall and proud.

each unique like a fingerprint, symbolize individuality and the beauty of diversity. Just as no two giraffes have the same pattern, each person's journey is distinct, and the giraffe reminds us to embrace our own path and to celebrate the differences that make the world vibrant

Spiritual Significance of the Giraffe The giraffe's unique appearance, with its graceful neck and striking patterns, reflects the beauty of diversity. It reminds us that love comes in many forms, that every person is a unique expression of the divine, and that acceptance is the key to harmony. giraffe's ability to reach for the highest leaves shows us that love, too, often requires us to stretch beyond our comfort zones, to elevate our hearts and minds, and to nurture others with kindness and compassion.

giraffe represents the connection between the earthly and the divine. Its long neck bridges the ground and the sky, suggesting a link between the physical world and higher realms of consciousness. The giraffe teaches us to lift our gaze, to maintain hope and vision even when surrounded by difficulties. It encourages us to look beyond the present, to trust in a higher perspective, and to find peace in knowing that there is a greater plan unfolding.

community, the giraffe stands as a powerful totem of pride and authenticity. It calls on individuals to stand tall, to hold their heads high, and to let their true selves be seen. The giraffe's message is one of inclusivity and acceptance, showing that every individual's unique spots contribute to the beauty of the whole.

It is a reminder that love, like the giraffe's heart, must be big and bold, offering a safe space for all to thrive. The giraffe's spirit asks us to elevate our perspective, to see love and humanity from a higher view, and to create a world where all can walk proudly with heart open.

the Giraffe Through the light of the sun god, WHO, the giraffe's love shines brightly. Just as the sun's rays touch all corners of the earth without discrimination, the giraffe's love is broad and inclusive. WHO's light inspires the giraffe to love without boundaries, to share warmth and understanding with all.

presence, offering perspective and clarity in matters of the heart. It teaches us that to love fully, we must rise above judgment, seeing the world through the lens of compassion and truth.

giraffe's connection to the earth goddess, YOU, is seen in its gentle approach to life. The giraffe moves gracefully through its environment, demonstrating how love can be a grounding force.

us that love is not just a feeling but an action, something we do every day through small acts of kindness and acceptance.

love is most powerful when it is gentle, when it creates safe spaces for others to express themselves freely and authentically.

HOW (The Holy Spirit) and the Giraffe The giraffe's long neck also symbolizes the flow of the Holy Spirit, HOW, connecting the head to the heart. The spirit moves through the giraffe, guiding it to act with love, to reach out to others, and to embrace all walks of life.

a divine energy that flows through us, and that by opening our hearts, we allow the spirit to move more freely in our lives. HOW's influence encourages us to be honest with ourselves and others, for only through honesty can love truly flourish.

the influence of the moon god, LAWHO, the giraffe embodies a love that is both bold and introspective. The moon's light is soft yet powerful, revealing hidden truths and nurturing the soul.

immediate, aligns with LAWHO's essence of witnessing, heeding, and looking yonder. It teaches us to love not only in the light but also in the shadows, to accept all aspects of ourselves and others, and to find beauty in the quiet, unspoken moments of connection.

the Giraffe A person might call upon the spirit of the giraffe when they need to open their heart, when they are struggling to love themselves or others, or when they seek to create a space of acceptance and inclusivity. The giraffe's spirit offers the courage to love without reservation, to embrace diversity, and to honor the beauty of every soul.

The giraffe teaches us that love is not about possession or control but about freedom and respect. It encourages us to rise above prejudice, to see the world from a higher perspective, and to act with empathy. By embodying the giraffe's spirit, we learn to love with an open heart, to extend grace to others, and to receive love without fear or hesitation.

practice, a journey of reaching for the highest branches of the spirit and sharing the fruits of love with all who need it.

A Proverb Tallest Among Us The giraffe stands tall, its heart lifted above the canopy, seeing with love where others see with fear. True pride is not in being above but in offering the view to those below. Those who walk with heart open share the tallest vision, one where love sees all, embraces all, and stands above all.

Grove In a lush savannah where the golden grass swayed like the ocean's waves, there lived a giraffe with a heart as open as the sky. Her neck stretched high above the treetops, allowing her to see the world from a broader perspective. The giraffe had a coat of soft amber, her spots like patches of sunlight on her skin. She moved with gentle grace, her long legs stepping softly over the earth.

One day, while wandering near the edge of the forest, the giraffe came upon a grove where the leaves shimmered in every color of the rainbow. Each tree bore different fruits, sweet and fragrant, and the air itself seemed to sing with the harmony of life. The grove was a place of acceptance, where all creatures came to find comfort and love.

There, beneath the shade of a tree with violet blossoms, the giraffe saw two zebras nuzzling one another, their stripes entwined. Not far away, two lionesses lay side by side, their bodies curled together in peaceful rest. The animals of the grove were diverse, some with mates that looked like them, others with partners whose coats and calls were different from their own.

glow that radiated outward. She understood then that love was not a single note but a symphony, each pairing a different melody that added to the whole. She walked among them, lowering her head to greet them, her presence a gentle acceptance.

animals whispered. "The grove is strange," they said. "Love should not look like that." They held tightly to their ideas of what love was supposed to be, their hearts closed to the colors of the rainbow. One evening, a fire swept through the savannah. The dry grass crackled, and smoke filled the air. The animals panicked, running in every direction, their cries a chorus of fear. But from the rainbow grove came a different sound, the low, calming hum of love. The animals there moved together, leading the frightened creatures to safety.

The zebras and lionesses, the elephants and antelope, all worked as one, their differences a strength, their love a guiding light.

When the fire had passed, the grove stood untouched. Its colors shone even brighter against the blackened earth. The animals who had once whispered now stood in awe, seeing that love, in all its forms, had saved them. The giraffe raised her long neck, her heart full, her eyes clear. She knew that love was not bound by rules or traditions, it reached as high as the sky and as deep as the roots of the earth.

And from that day on, the grove became a place where all were welcome. The animals learned to see with their hearts, to let love grow in whatever shape it chose. And the giraffe, with her open heart and lofty view, became a symbol of that love—the kind that sees beyond, that reaches high, and that welcomes all.

about love, I think about how it has no real boundaries. Love doesn't fit neatly into categories of gender, attraction, or expectation. It's like the giraffe with its long neck, reaching for the highest leaves, seeing over the landscape.

entities in the world need division. They want us in large groups that they can align against each other. They even break those groups into smaller ones, assigning each their on labels, and then we all are conditioned to hold boundaries, clash with other labels and groups.

to remember we all souls from the same Divine. I've even read that all of humanity can be traced back to one mother!(Mitochondrial Eve) That's another reason to see each other as sons and daughters of the same Divine. One nation. One love. One nation in Spirit - not one system in power.

showing us a view of life and connection that might not always make sense to the world but makes perfect sense to the heart. For me, love has always been about the connection between souls.

acknowledge that love doesn't always fit into a box. There's beauty in the same sex, in the opposite sex, and in the ways love can grow beyond physical attraction. I admire strength, kindness, and the way certain people carry themselves through life.

they don't fit a traditional mold—they're just as real, just as powerful.

because it stands tall, seeing the world from a different perspective. It isn't afraid to reach, to stretch its neck, to go beyond what others might find comfortable. I try to channel that spirit, to look at love not just through my own eyes but through the lens of compassion and acceptance.

love, and it doesn't need permission or validation. I think that's why the giraffe's open heart means so much to me. It doesn't hold back; it doesn't judge. It simply loves—with honesty, with gentleness, and with a sense of grace. And if I can live that way, if I can love that way, then I know I'm on the right path. Because at the end of the day, it's not about who you love but how you love—with an open heart, reaching for the highest truth.

has passed through a hole of some unusual shape after a long course, the impression it makes where it strikes resembles the luminous body from which it springs."

Reflection Here Leonardo describes how even when light is filtered through distance or shape, its image still resembles its origin. Spiritually, this is the essence of divine imprint: no matter how many obstacles, distortions, or weaknesses we endure, the light within us still bears the likeness of its source.

bent mirrors, but the radiance that shines through still carries God's image. Our calling is not to be perfect conduits but to let what light we can pass through us. Even distorted, the light still testifies to where it came from.

Giraffe May the eyes of the giraffe grant you perspective, to see above the noise, and to recognize truth from a higher view.

walk with quiet strength, and to bend low in kindness despite your height.

graceful, moving with balance, unshaken though the winds may sway.

teaching you to reach for what others cannot, and to seek nourishment from places unseen.

giraffe carry you forward, with steady patience across the plains, undaunted by distance or time.

And may the soul of the giraffe remind you always: you are lifted in spirit, made to rise yet remain humble, and the Great Spirit walks with you in every step and gaze.

Fun Facts About Giraffes Giraffes are the tallest land animals in the world—adult males can grow up to 18 feet tall!

seven neck bones, just like humans—each one is just super-sized.

inches) to grab leaves from tall trees, and fav acacia.
They hardly ever lie down—giraffes sleep and even give birth while standing!

Despite their height, giraffes can run up to 35 miles per hour in short bursts when they need to escape danger.

The giraffe, with its towering height and graceful stance, is a symbol of perspective, vision, and pride. Its long neck allows it to see far and wide, offering a unique vantage point that others cannot access. This elevated perspective symbolizes the ability to rise above challenges, to see beyond the immediate, and to maintain a broader view of life's journey. The giraffe's quiet, gentle demeanor contrasts with its striking presence, showing that true strength often lies in subtlety and quiet confidence.

the largest among land animals, a literal and metaphorical symbol of having a big heart. This aligns with the idea of living "With Heart Open," as the giraffe embodies the ability to hold compassion, understanding, and love while standing tall and proud.

fingerprint, symbolize individuality and the beauty of diversity. Just as no two giraffes have the same pattern, each person's journey is distinct, and the giraffe reminds us to embrace our own path and to celebrate the differences that make the world vibrant

The giraffe's unique appearance, with its graceful neck and striking patterns, reflects the beauty of diversity. It reminds us that love comes in many forms, that every person is a unique expression of the divine, and that acceptance is the key to harmony.

leaves shows us that love, too, often requires us to stretch beyond our comfort zones, to elevate our hearts and minds, and to nurture others with kindness and compassion.

Spiritually, the giraffe represents the connection between the earthly and the divine. Its long neck bridges the ground and the sky, suggesting a link between the physical world and higher realms of consciousness. The giraffe teaches us to lift our gaze, to maintain hope and vision even when surrounded by difficulties. It encourages us to look beyond the present, to trust in a higher perspective, and to find peace in knowing that there is a greater plan unfolding.

For the LGBTQ community, the giraffe stands as a powerful totem of pride and authenticity. It calls on individuals to stand tall, to hold their heads high, and to let their true selves be seen. The giraffe's message is one of inclusivity and acceptance, showing that every individual's unique spots contribute to the beauty of the whole.

It is a reminder that love, like the giraffe's heart, must be big and bold, offering a safe space for all to thrive. The giraffe's spirit asks us to elevate our perspective, to see love and humanity from a higher view, and to create a world where all can walk proudly with heart open.

the Giraffe Through the light of the sun god, WHO, the giraffe's love shines brightly. Just as the sun's rays touch all corners of the earth without discrimination, the giraffe's love is broad and inclusive. WHO's light inspires the giraffe to love without boundaries, to share warmth and understanding with all.

presence, offering perspective and clarity in matters of the heart. It teaches us that to love fully, we must rise above judgment, seeing the world through the lens of compassion and truth.

giraffe's connection to the earth goddess, YOU, is seen in its gentle approach to life. The giraffe moves gracefully through its environment, demonstrating how love can be a grounding force.

us that love is not just a feeling but an action, something we do every day through small acts of kindness and acceptance.

The giraffe's peaceful nature reminds us that love is most powerful when it is gentle, when it creates safe spaces for others to express themselves freely and authentically.

HOW (The Holy Spirit) and the Giraffe The giraffe's long neck also symbolizes the flow of the Holy Spirit, HOW, connecting the head to the heart. The spirit moves through the giraffe, guiding it to act with love, to reach out to others, and to embrace all walks of life.

a divine energy that flows through us, and that by opening our hearts, we allow the spirit to move more freely in our lives. HOW's influence encourages us to be honest with ourselves and others, for only through honesty can love truly flourish.

the influence of the moon god, LAWHO, the giraffe embodies a love that is both bold and introspective. The moon's light is soft yet powerful, revealing hidden truths and nurturing the soul.

immediate, aligns with LAWHO's essence of witnessing, heeding, and looking yonder. It teaches us to love not only in the light but also in the shadows, to accept all aspects of ourselves and others, and to find beauty in the quiet, unspoken moments of connection.

the Giraffe A person might call upon the spirit of the giraffe when they need to open their heart, when they are struggling to love themselves or others, or when they seek to create a space of acceptance and inclusivity. The giraffe's spirit offers the courage to love without reservation, to embrace diversity, and to honor the beauty of every soul.

The giraffe teaches us that love is not about possession or control but about freedom and respect. It encourages us to rise above prejudice, to see the world from a higher perspective, and to act with empathy. By embodying the giraffe's spirit, we learn to love with an open heart, to extend grace to others, and to receive love without fear or hesitation.

practice, a journey of reaching for the highest branches of the spirit and sharing the fruits of love with all who need it.

A Proverb Tallest Among Us The giraffe stands tall, its heart lifted above the canopy, seeing with love where others see with fear. True pride is not in being above but in offering the view to those below. Those who walk with heart open share the tallest vision, one where love sees all, embraces all, and stands above all.

Grove In a lush savannah where the golden grass swayed like the ocean's waves, there lived a giraffe with a heart as open as the sky. Her neck stretched high above the treetops, allowing her to see the world from a broader perspective. The giraffe had a coat of soft amber, her spots like patches of sunlight on her skin. She moved with gentle grace, her long legs stepping softly over the earth.

One day, while wandering near the edge of the forest, the giraffe came upon a grove where the leaves shimmered in every color of the rainbow. Each tree bore different fruits, sweet and fragrant, and the air itself seemed to sing with the harmony of life. The grove was a place of acceptance, where all creatures came to find comfort and love.

There, beneath the shade of a tree with violet blossoms, the giraffe saw two zebras nuzzling one another, their stripes entwined. Not far away, two lionesses lay side by side, their bodies curled together in peaceful rest. The animals of the grove were diverse, some with mates that looked like them, others with partners whose coats and calls were different from their own.

glow that radiated outward. She understood then that love was not a single note but a symphony, each pairing a different melody that added to the whole. She walked among them, lowering her head to greet them, her presence a gentle acceptance.

animals whispered. "The grove is strange," they said. "Love should not look like that." They held tightly to their ideas of what love was supposed to be, their hearts closed to the colors of the rainbow. One evening, a fire swept through the savannah. The dry grass crackled, and smoke filled the air. The animals panicked, running in every direction, their cries a chorus of fear. But from the rainbow grove came a different sound, the low, calming hum of love. The animals there moved together, leading the frightened creatures to safety. The zebras and lionesses, the elephants and antelope, all worked as one, their differences a strength, their love a guiding light.

untouched. Its colors shone even brighter against the blackened earth. The animals who had once whispered now stood in awe, seeing that love, in all its forms, had saved them. The giraffe raised her long neck, her heart full, her eyes clear. She knew that love was not bound by rules or traditions, it reached as high as the sky and as deep as the roots of the earth.

a place where all were welcome. The animals learned to see with their hearts, to let love grow in whatever shape it chose. And the giraffe, with her open heart and lofty view, became a symbol of that love—the kind that sees beyond, that reaches high, and that welcomes all.

When I think about love, I think about how it has no real boundaries. Love doesn't fit neatly into categories of gender, attraction, or expectation. It's like the giraffe with its long neck, reaching for the highest leaves, seeing over the landscape.

They want us in large groups that they can align against each other. They even break those groups into smaller ones, assigning each their on labels, and then we all are conditioned to hold boundaries, clash with other labels and groups.

You have to remember we all souls from the same Divine. I've even read that all of humanity can be traced back to one mother!(Mitochondrial Eve) That's another reason to see each other as sons and daughters of the same Divine. One nation. One love. One nation in Spirit - not one system in power.

showing us a view of life and connection that might not always make sense to the world but makes perfect sense to the heart. For me, love has always been about the connection between souls.

acknowledge that love doesn't always fit into a box. There's beauty in the same sex, in the opposite sex, and in the ways love can grow beyond physical attraction. I admire strength, kindness, and the way certain people carry themselves through life.

they don't fit a traditional mold—they're just as real, just as powerful.

because it stands tall, seeing the world from a different perspective. It isn't afraid to reach, to stretch its neck, to go beyond what others might find comfortable. I try to channel that spirit, to look at love not just through my own eyes but through the lens of compassion and acceptance.

Love is love, and it doesn't need permission or validation. I think that's why the giraffe's open heart means so much to me. It doesn't hold back; it doesn't judge. It simply loves—with honesty, with gentleness, and with a sense of grace. And if I can live that way, if I can love that way, then I know I'm on the right path. Because at the end of the day, it's not about who you love but how you love—with an open heart, reaching for the highest truth.

luminous ray has passed through a hole of some unusual shape after a long course, the impression it makes where it strikes resembles the luminous body from which it springs." Reflection Here Leonardo describes how even when light is filtered through distance or shape, its image still resembles its origin. Spiritually, this is the essence of divine imprint: no matter how many obstacles, distortions, or weaknesses we endure, the light within us still bears the likeness of its source.

bent mirrors, but the radiance that shines through still carries God's image. Our calling is not to be perfect conduits but to let what light we can pass through us. Even distorted, the light still testifies to where it came from.

Blessun of the Giraffe May the eyes of the giraffe grant you perspective, to see above the noise, and to recognize truth from a higher view.

gentleness, to walk with quiet strength, and to bend low in kindness despite your height.

May the spirit of the giraffe keep you graceful, moving with balance, unshaken though the winds may sway.

May the neck of the giraffe awaken vision, teaching you to reach for what others cannot, and to seek nourishment from places unseen.

forward, with steady patience across the plains, undaunted by distance or time.

you always: you are lifted in spirit, made to rise yet remain humble, and the Great Spirit walks with you in every step and gaze.

animals in the world—adult males can grow up to 18 feet tall!

seven neck bones, just like humans—each one is just super-sized.

inches) to grab leaves from tall trees, and fav acacia.

They hardly ever lie down—giraffes sleep and even give birth while standing!

Despite their height, giraffes can run up to 35 miles per hour in short bursts when they need to escape danger.